

If you have recently formatted and reinstalled an OS on a DELL computer you may need to download and install correct drivers for your DELL to work properly. To download the correct drivers from DELL official site, you will require the DELL service tag or the DELL model number.

The DELL model number and the tag number is located on the chassis of your computer. The model may be associated with Microsoft certificate key and the service tag associated with a barcode.

When you go to the DELL website to download the drivers you will need the Tag number or the Model number. Entering the tag number is the easiest way to find your drivers.

Click here to go to the DELL official driver download site. After installing the new OS go to the Device Manager on your computer and see if any devices need drivers to be installed. Find the device name and download and install the driver from the above link.
